KOHLHOFF - Custom furling ropes (Torsional ropes)

Torsional rope is a cost effective alternative to a custom cable for smaller racing and cruising boats. As its name implies, the torsional rope is cut from a roll and then terminated at the required length, around a thimble which fits your furling unit. A variety of termination methods are used: clamping, sewing or splicing and it is generally the quality of this termination that will define the overall quality and durability of your cable. Care should be taken when using torsional rope for top-down applications. Top-down furling requires high torsional performance and as a result it is important that there is sufficient cable diameter relative to the overall cable length to ensure adequate torsion. Therefore it is recommended to go up a size in diameter earlier for top-down than bottom-up.

KOHLHOFF BACKSTAYS (made of Gottfredi Maffioli Ultrawire 99)
Composite backstays or runners are one of the simplest ways of achieving a performance upgrade from wire or rod. With 75-80% weight reduction and much kinder to the leach of your mainsail, composite backstays are quite literally a "no-brainer". For small boats the SK99 Ultrawire backstays provide a very reliable, durable step into composites.

KOHLHOFF FURLING LINES

A simple furling rope may not appear like a technical product. However, if you have ever experienced a furling line jamming in the drum you will know better. A furling line needs to be stiff to provide maximum torque but more importantly you need an excellent cover to prevent milking which can jam the drum and create a furling nightmare.
